The Independence Preservation Trust is developing a network of suggested bike routes in and around the Independence area. Below is “Independence to Washington-on-the-Brazos,” our first route that takes you to two of Texas’ most historic towns.

“Independence to Washington-on-the-Brazos”

Description: For historic interests, long views of the Brazos River Valley and visits to country churches and general stores, this loop between Independence and Washington-on-the-Brazos State Park is a perfect way to experience the countryside of Washington County. Most of this ride is on paved, rural, back roads that will allow you to really see and appreciate the idyllic, country landscape around Independence.

Start: You can begin your ride either at the columns of Old Baylor in Independence or in the larger parking areas of Washington-on-the-Brazos State Park.

Terrain: Gently rolling hills.

Distance: 30.1 miles.

“Independence to Washington-on-the-Brazos”

Roads: Rural roads are one lane. Please be alert because, while these rural roads are peaceful and do not have a great deal of traffic, most drivers are not accustomed to seeing bikers. These roads are paved but they are a little rough so, just in case, come prepared with a standard flat tire repair kit. FM roads are two lanes, no shoulders, light traffic except during spring wildflower season. Texas 105 has higher-speed traffic but does have a wide shoulder.

Season: While this route’s rolling terrain and historic sites make it beautiful all year round, it is great for Texas wildflower viewing in the spring.
